

Virginia Satire said that we build our friendships on what we find in common, but we grow from sharing our differences.

What is my Human self?

What is my Masculine self?

What is my Feminine self?

See the power & control wheel and find anything that is not Human vs. Masculine or Feminine!

How much of the battle of the sexes is the focus on the differences rather than the similarities?

Note that there is only 2% differences between the DNA of men and women, while being 98% the same.

Note that there is also only 2% differences in the DNA between humans and Chimps.

Note that, while rare or maybe not so rare, there are also individuals that are genetically wired for both genders.

What is going on in the self esteem and lack of personal power in men that the most denigrative names we can call other men is about being feminine. This says more about our lack of faith in our masculine energy and fear of not being seen as a man than it says about our appreciation of our masculine energy.

There is not a lack of masculine energy in our culture and the world, there is a massive lack of positive masculine (healthy King energy), there an excess of toxic masculine energy.
